

In 2007 Charlie created the Rolling Summerhouse, an extraordinary spherical structure large enough to relax inside, but light enough for an adult to roll around a garden. Children can use it as a climbing frame, and it can be safely anchored to the ground with three child-proof legs.

There are currently two designs, both elaborate, geometrical representations of microscopic natural phenomena: a pollen grain (4 metres, above and right) and a plankton cell (3 metres, below and far right).

Charlie is planning a third design for 2008 which will be available in July – you can order it now

A Rolling Summer House is a sensational garden feature and much more:

A serious piece of public art, inspired by the natural world.

A private space in the shade, perfect for reading or an intimate picnic.

A climbing structure for children, with no sharp edges.

Thin strands of wood on the outer layer mean impact on lawn is minimal

The whole structure can be rolled about by two adults, and fixed in place with child-proof legs.

Charlie Whinney Associates will personally deliver and install a rolling summer house throughout Europe, and will arrange this for the rest of the world. All international deliveries will include an appropriate donation to a local sustainable woodland project.
